

2020 Lawrence R. Klein Award

For the most accurate U.S. economic forecast

As we near the end of a year of rapid-fire fluctuations in unemployment, global trade, and the stock market, in an environment still largely dominated by uncertainties around COVID-19 and a looming election, what does 2021 really hold for the U.S. economy?

Join us online for an economic forecast from the country's most accurate economist: Ellen Zentner, a managing director and the chief U.S. economist at Morgan Stanley.

For the second time in three years, Zentner will also be honored with the Lawrence R. Klein Award, regarded as one of the best-known and longest-standing achievements in the field.

RSVP now to reserve your seat for this can't-miss event.

Ellen Zentner

Ellen Zentner is the chief U.S. economist and a managing director at Morgan Stanley. Zentner has been named to the "Bloomberg Best" list of top forecasters of the U.S. economy and has 20-plus years' experience as a Fed watcher and markets-based economist, with a keen eye toward early identification of market-moving trends.

In 2018, she and her team received the Lawrence R. Klein Award for the most accurate economic forecasts from 2014 to 2017.

Zentner joined Morgan Stanley in 2013 from Nomura Securities International, where she served as senior economist for fixed income. Previously, she served as the senior economist at Bank of Tokyo-Mitsubishi UFJ Ltd., and senior economist at the Texas State Comptroller.

Zentner serves on the Treasury Borrowing Advisory Committee (TBAC), on the Economic Advisory Panel for the Federal Reserve Bank of New York as well as the American Bankers' Association, and as chair of SIFMA's Economic Advisory Roundtable. She is a director of the National Association for Business Economics as well as the NABE Foundation, and is a past president of NYABE.

Blue Chip Economic Indicators

For more than four decades, the Blue Chip newsletter has compiled a record of providing corporate and government decision-makers with the latest in expert opinion on the future performance of the American economy. Each month the newsletter surveys America's top business economists, collecting their forecasts of U.S. economic growth, inflation, interest rates, and a host of other critical indicators of future business activity. The forecasts and commentary are frequently cited by such national media outlets as Reuters, The Wall Street Journal, and Forbes.
