COURSE DESCRIPTION:

Prerequisites: Econ 101 (intermediate micro theory), Math 104 (Calculus, Pat I) and Math 114 (Calculus Part II) or Math 115 (Calculus Part II with Probability and Matrices). Econ 103 (Statistics for Economists) is also recommended.

Textbook: (available at Penn Book Store or can be purchased online): David N. Hyman: Public Finance: A Contemporary Application of Theory to Policy (11th Edition). SouthWestern Press, 2014.

COURSE SYNOPSIS:

The main goal of this class is to develop a set of tools for analyzing the role that government plays in the economy and the lives of its citizens. In particular, we will consider some reasons for government intervention in a market economy and study the impact of government expenditure programs and taxation systems on the welfare and behavior of its citizens. The course will cover a wide range of issues in public finance with a focus on current policy debates and issues. Topics covered will include the common use of natural resources, the environment, health care reform, social security, public assistance program, and taxation.

CLASS CANVAS:

We will use the class Canvas site: <https://canvas.upenn.edu/courses/1224317> for all postings of course materials, including problem sets and solutions, lecture notes, practice exams, and announcements.

COURSE REQUIREMENT AND GRADING POLICY

Requirements for this class include three in-class midterm exams and four problem sets. Each exam will cover material from roughly a third of the class:

- The first midterm exam will be given in class on September 29, Monday;
- The second midterm exam will be given in class on October 27, Monday;
- The third midterm exam will be given on the final day of class, December 8, Monday.
- The five problem sets will be dispersed at regular intervals throughout the semester and will include problems indicative of those that will be used on the exams.
- Grades for the class will mainly be based on these requirements in roughly the following proportions:

Problem Sets (5) (equally weighted)	25%
First In-Class Midterm Exam (September 29, Monday)	25%
Second In-Class Midterm Exam (October 27, Monday)	25%
Third In-Class Midterm Exam (December 8, Monday)	25%

Please make sure that you schedule your travels, including job interviews, to avoid the exam dates. The policy regarding missing exams is described in items 8 and 9 in the class policy section of the syllabus.

- Two class debates are planned on health care reform and the U.S. debt crisis (see below). Also, additional credit will be given based on participation in the general class discussions.
- As mentioned below in class rule #1, if a student repeatedly fails to attend classes without proper excuses, he/she will receive a lower grade.

Class Policies for Econ 231 (Fall 2014)

1. Attendance:

Attendance of lectures is required. If a student repeatedly fails to attend classes without proper excuses, the student will receive a lower grade. I understand that some of you may have to schedule a must-do interview and miss a class. Please let me know beforehand for permission.

2. Cooperation:

You may discuss homework assignments with each other; however, each individual must submit a separate homework assignment (i.e. write/type up your own answers, no copies), and each individual will be separately graded on the assignment. You may not cooperate while taking exams.

3. Aids During Exams:

All exams are closed book. You may not communicate or cooperate with anyone on the exam.

4. Format of Assigned Work:

All homework assignments and term paper must be typed. All hand written answers to exam questions should be legible. Spelling, grammar, style, etc. do not "count" per se. However, anything that the TA or I cannot read or understand is wrong. Poor spelling, grammar, style, etc are often confusing.

5. Lateness:

Due and return dates for assignments will be announced in class. These dates are binding. Late assignments are not accepted without either proper arrangement and compelling, verifiable reason.

6. Return of Homeworks and Exams:

Homeworks and exams will be returned to you during class. You are responsible for picking them up.

7. Re-grade requests:

A request for a re-grade of a problem set or an exam must be submitted to me in writing. In such a case, I will reevaluate your complete homework set or exam.

8. Exam Attendance Policy:

I follow the economics department's policy on exam attendance. Please see

<https://economics.sas.upenn.edu/undergraduate-program/course-information/guidelines/policies> for details. The policy is copied below:

"In cases where attendance at a midterm or a final exam is mandatory, there are only a few valid excuses for missing an exam. They are:

- Three exams scheduled within one calendar day (for final exams ONLY!) This policy of 3 exams does not count for midterm exams given during class time.

- An exam is given outside of the regular class schedule and the timing conflicts with another class in which the student is enrolled.
- Observance of a university-recognized religious holiday.
- UPENN Business that takes you away from campus. Absence from campus on UPENN business includes, for example, athletic events in which you are actively participating. In such cases, you need to make arrangements with your professor ahead of the exam date to take the exam at another time (preferably earlier than the schedule date).
- An illness/health emergency.
- A death in your family.
- Documented disabilities that allow you to take the exam under other circumstances.

Examples of reasons that are not valid for missing an exam are:

- job interviews;
- job internships;
- beginning fall or spring break early or returning after a scheduled exam;
- end of semester early flights;
- any other reason you would prefer not to be at the university when the exam is scheduled.

Students are responsible for making sure, at the beginning of the term, that they can attend the exams. Registering for a course means that you certify that you will be present for the exam (unless one of the explicitly stated exceptions above arises.)

If you are unexpectedly ill at the time of the exam and unable to reach the instructor ahead of time, then you can give notification of your illness as soon as you are able. Do not take an exam if you are ill and then expect to have an opportunity to retake the exam because you were ill the first time and did poorly.

Students who arrive late to an exam will generally be required to hand in their exam at the same time as other students.”

9. Make-up Exams:

There are no make-up written exams. However, if you have one of the valid excuses listed above for missing a midterm, your next midterm will be worth 50% of your grade if the one you missed is either the first or the second midterm. If your missed exam is the third midterm, then I will administer an oral exam to replace it.
